

Etienne Soboleff

Indigenous Wellness Apprentice

Etienne Soboleff serves as the Indigenous Wellness Apprentice at Goldbelt Heritage Foundation (GHF). Her day-to-day tasks consist of working with fluent Tlingit speakers to help electronically archive Tlingit literature; assisting the GHF middle school teachers in the classroom; and event planning.

She received her B.A. in Linguistics/Cultural Studies & Sociology from Seattle Pacific University (SPU). During university, she prioritized engaging with the student body through various student leadership roles. Etienne served as a resident advisor during her junior year and then as the event programmer for Catalyst, a leadership team aimed at addressing issues of race, ethnicity, and social justice during her senior year.
